

6516206340.txt

I really enjoy XM radio. I am in my car a majority of the day and am tired of hearing radio disc jockies talking and talking and talking about stuff that is basically garbage and slapstick. Commercials are constant. I purchased XM radio for the pure sake of listening to clean MUSIC. Not what someone ate for dinner last night, or who they met at the bar and what someone was wearing and how they picked on them over the air. Half the time the disc jockies aren't even speaking appropriately to an audience of children. I have two young children and when they are in the car I spend half the morning changing stations to find something decent for thier ears. I should be driving and paying attention to driving and not concerned about the appropriateness of what is being said on the broadcast radio. Braodcast radio should pay more attention to music and not prices as to who has the biggest body parts in order to win a prize. I don't now about stations across the nation but if they are anything like my east coast home, maybe xm radio was the best thing to happen to them and to realise that the people are sick of it and thats why sales for XM are booming. Clean up and lets listen to some music!